

Lori Adams, PhD

Lori Adams, PhD serves as both an Associate Professor of Instruction and Program Director at the University of Iowa. Dr. Adams co-directs the NSF-funded Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska Louis Stokes Alliance for Minority Participation program as well as the NIH-funded Iowa Biosciences Academy program whose mission is to increase the diversity of students earning PhDs in the Biosciences. Dr. Adams is also the Executive Director of the Latham Science Engagement Initiative which supports student engagement in science outreach in the community.

Since 2015, Dr. Adams has been an active Master Facilitator with the NIH-funded National Research Mentor Network. She leads mentor trainings at the national level, as well as facilitator trainings for the Entering Mentoring and Entering Research curricula. She received her degrees from the University of Illinois (BS) and Texas A&M (PhD).

11TH ANNUAL

FACULTY WOMEN'S SYMPOSIUM

The University of Iowa prohibits discrimination in employment, educational programs, and activities on the basis of race, creed, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, pregnancy, disability, genetic information, status as a U.S. veteran, service in the U.S. military, sexual orientation, gender identity, associational preferences, or any other classification that deprives the person of consideration as an individual. The university also affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunities and equal access to university facilities.
